Governor Wolf and PEMA Provide Update on Tornado Damage in NE Pennsylvania

Wilkes-Barre, PA – Severe storms affected much of Northeast Pennsylvania last night. Governor Tom Wolf and officials at the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency (PEMA) provided an update on the damage caused by a tornado and outlined next steps for the region.

Governor Wolf visited the shopping centers at 3570 Wilkes Barre Blvd, Wilkes Barre Township, and examined the damage there. He met with PEMA Director Rick Flinn, local emergency management, and first responders.
